SEAN F. MCAVOY, CLERK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

VICTORIYONDO M.,<sup>1</sup>
Plaintiff,

vs.

COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,<sup>2</sup>
Defendant.

No. 1:18-cv-03155-MKD

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT AND DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

ECF Nos. 14, 19

Before the Court are the parties' cross-motions for summary judgment. ECF Nos. 14, 19. The parties consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. ECF No.

<sup>1</sup> To protect the privacy of plaintiffs in social security cases, the undersigned identifies them by only their first names and the initial of their last names.

<sup>2</sup> Andrew M. Saul is now the Commissioner of the Social Security Administration. Accordingly, the Court substitutes Andrew M. Saul as the Defendant and directs the Clerk to update the docket sheet. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 25(d).

1 8. The Court, having reviewed the administrative record and the parties' briefing, 2 is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, the Court grants Plaintiff's 3 motion, ECF No. 14, and denies Defendant's motion, ECF No. 19.

4 JURISDICTION

5 The Court has jurisdiction over this case pursuant to 42 U.S.C. §§ 405(g); 6 1383(c)(3).

7 STANDARD OF REVIEW

8 A district court's review of a final decision of the Commissioner of Social 9 Security is governed by 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). The scope of review under § 405(g) is 10 limited; the Commissioner's decision will be disturbed "only if it is not supported 11 by substantial evidence or is based on legal error." Hill v. Astrue, 698 F.3d 1153, 12 1158 (9th Cir. 2012). "Substantial evidence" means "relevant evidence that a 13 reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion." Id. at 1159 14 (quotation and citation omitted). Stated differently, substantial evidence equates to 15 "more than a mere scintilla[,] but less than a preponderance." Id. (quotation and 16 citation omitted). In determining whether the standard has been satisfied, a 17 reviewing court must consider the entire record as a whole rather than searching 18 for supporting evidence in isolation. Id.

19 In reviewing a denial of benefits, a district court may not substitute its 20 judgment for that of the Commissioner. Edlund v. Massanari, 253 F.3d 1152,

1 1156 (9th Cir. 2001). If the evidence in the record “is susceptible to more than one 2 rational interpretation, [the court] must uphold the ALJ’s findings if they are 3 supported by inferences reasonably drawn from the record.” Molina v. Astrue, 674 4 F.3d 1104, 1111 (9th Cir. 2012). Further, a district court “may not reverse an 5 ALJ’s decision on account of an error that is harmless.” Id. An error is harmless 6 “where it is inconsequential to the [ALJ’s] ultimate nondisability determination.”
7 Id. at 1115 (quotation and citation omitted). The party appealing the ALJ’s 8 decision generally bears the burden of establishing that it was harmed. Shinseki v.
9 Sanders, 556 U.S. 396, 409-10 (2009).

10 FIVE-STEP EVALUATION PROCESS

11 A claimant must satisfy two conditions to be considered “disabled” within 12 the meaning of the Social Security Act. First, the claimant must be “unable to 13 engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable 14 physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which 15 has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than twelve 16 months.” 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(1)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(A). Second, the claimant’s 17 impairment must be “of such severity that he is not only unable to do his previous 18 work[,] but cannot, considering his age, education, and work experience, engage in 19 any other kind of substantial gainful work which exists in the national economy.” 20 42 U.S.C. §§ 423(d)(2)(A), 1382c(a)(3)(B).

1 The Commissioner has established a five-step sequential analysis to 2 determine whether a claimant satisfies the above criteria. See 20 C.F.R. §§
3 404.1520(a)(4)(i)-(v), 416.920(a)(4)(i)-(v). At step one, the Commissioner 4 considers the claimant’s work activity. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(i), 5 416.920(a)(4)(i). If the claimant is engaged in “substantial gainful activity,” the 6 Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 7 404.1520(b), 416.920(b).

8 If the claimant is not engaged in substantial gainful activity, the analysis 9 proceeds to step two. At this step, the Commissioner considers the severity of the 10 claimant’s impairment. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(ii), 416.920(a)(4)(ii). If the 11 claimant suffers from “any impairment or combination of impairments which 12 significantly limits [his] physical or mental ability to do basic work activities,” the 13 analysis proceeds to step three. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(c), 416.920(c). If the 14 claimant’s impairment does not satisfy this severity threshold, however, the 15 Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 16 404.1520(c), 416.920(c).

17 At step three, the Commissioner compares the claimant’s impairment to 18 severe impairments recognized by the Commissioner to be so severe as to preclude 19 a person from engaging in substantial gainful activity. 20 C.F.R. §§ 20 404.1520(a)(4)(iii), 416.920(a)(4)(iii). If the impairment is as severe or more

1 severe than one of the enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must find the 2 claimant disabled and award benefits. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(d), 416.920(d).

3 If the severity of the claimant's impairment does not meet or exceed the 4 severity of the enumerated impairments, the Commissioner must pause to assess 5 the claimant's "residual functional capacity." Residual functional capacity (RFC), 6 defined generally as the claimant's ability to perform physical and mental work 7 activities on a sustained basis despite his limitations, 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1545(a)(1), 8 416.945(a)(1), is relevant to both the fourth and fifth steps of the analysis.

9 At step four, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 10 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing work that he performed in the past 11 (past relevant work). 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(iv), 416.920(a)(4)(iv). If the 12 claimant is capable of performing past relevant work, the Commissioner must find 13 that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(f), 416.920(f). If the 14 claimant is incapable of performing such work, the analysis proceeds to step five.

15 At step five, the Commissioner considers whether, in view of the claimant's 16 RFC, the claimant is capable of performing other work in the national economy.
17 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(v), 416.920(a)(4)(v). In making this determination, 18 the Commissioner must also consider vocational factors such as the claimant's age, 19 education, and past work experience. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(a)(4)(v), 20 416.920(a)(4)(v). If the claimant is capable of adjusting to other work, the

1 Commissioner must find that the claimant is not disabled. 20 C.F.R. §§ 2 404.1520(g)(1), 416.920(g)(1). If the claimant is not capable of adjusting to other 3 work, the analysis concludes with a finding that the claimant is disabled and is 4 therefore entitled to benefits. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520(g)(1), 416.920(g)(1).

5 The claimant bears the burden of proof at steps one through four above.
6 Tackett v. Apfel, 180 F.3d 1094, 1098 (9th Cir. 1999). If the analysis proceeds to 7 step five, the burden shifts to the Commissioner to establish that 1) the claimant is 8 capable of performing other work; and 2) such work “exists in significant numbers 9 in the national economy.” 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1560(c)(2), 416.960(c)(2); Beltran v.
10 Astrue, 700 F.3d 386, 389 (9th Cir. 2012).

11 PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND THE ALJ’S FINDINGS

12 Plaintiff filed for Title II disability insurance benefits on October 22, 2009, 13 and Title XVI supplemental security income benefits on November 9, 2009. Tr.
14 356-64. He alleged a disability onset date of October 31, 2008. Id. The 15 applications were denied initially and upon reconsideration. Tr. 166-72, 174-85.
16 Plaintiff appeared at a hearing before an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) on 17 December 8, 2011, at which time the ALJ requested additional mental testing. Tr.
18 76-102. A supplemental hearing was held on May 1, 2012. Tr. 41-75. On June 19 14, 2012, the ALJ denied Plaintiff’s claim. Tr. 137-59. The Appeals Council 20 remanded the decision and directed the ALJ to further consider the opinion of Dr.

1 Genthe. Tr. 160-63. Plaintiff appeared for another hearing before the ALJ on 2 January 28, 2014. Tr. 103-31. The ALJ denied his claims on March 3, 2014. Tr.
3 15-40. The Appeals Council denied review. Tr. 1-4.

4 In March 2017, this Court granted Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment
5 and remanded the matter to the ALJ for reconsideration of the medical opinions
6 and Plaintiff's symptoms. Tr. 1126-51. On remand, the ALJ conducted a hearing 7 and received additional medical and vocational testimony. Tr. 1033-90. On May 8 2, 2018, the ALJ again denied Plaintiff's claims. Tr. 1003-30.

9 Initially, the ALJ found that Plaintiff's date last insured was December 31, 10 2008.<sup>3</sup> Tr. 1009. At step one, the ALJ found that Plaintiff has not engaged in 11 substantial gainful activity since October 31, 2008. Tr. 1009. At step two, the ALJ 12 found Plaintiff has the following severe impairments: major depressive disorder, 13 panic disorder, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), cognitive disorder, 14 personality disorder with antisocial features, and poly-substance dependence. Tr.
15 1009. At step three, the ALJ found that Plaintiff does not have an impairment or 16 combination of impairments that meets or medically equals a listed impairment.
17 Tr. 1010. The ALJ then found that Plaintiff has the RFC to perform a full range of

19 <sup>3</sup> To obtain disability insurance benefits, Plaintiff must demonstrate he was 20 disabled before his last insured date. 42 U.S.C. § 423(c); 20 C.F.R. § 404.1520.

1 work at all exertional levels and the basic mental demands of competitive, 2 unskilled work, including the ability to:

3 Understand, remember, carry out, and remember [sic] simple 4 instructions. He can respond appropriately to supervision, coworkers, 5 and usual work situations, and deal with changes in a routine work
6 setting. These jobs should be those that can be learned within 30 7 days, by demonstration, and involve only simple work-related 8 decisions and few workplace changes. He can have superficial and 9 infrequent interaction with supervisors, public and coworkers. There 10 should be no highly interactive or interdependent work groups.

11 Tr. 1012. At step four, the ALJ found that Plaintiff has no past relevant work. Tr.
12 1019. The ALJ found at step five that there are jobs that exist in significant 13 numbers in the national economy that the Plaintiff can perform given his age, 14 education, work experience, and RFC, such as industrial cleaner, kitchen helper, 15 and laundry worker II. Tr. 1020. On that basis, the ALJ found that Plaintiff was 16 not disabled, as defined in the Social Security Act, from October 31, 2008, through 17 the date of the ALJ's May 2, 2018 decision. Tr. 1021.

18 Per 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.984 and 416.1484, the ALJ's decision following this 19 Court's prior remand became the Commissioner's final decision for purposes of 20 judicial review.

21 ISSUES

22 Plaintiff seeks judicial review of the Commissioner's final decision denying 23 him supplemental security income benefits under Title XVI and disability

1 insurance benefits under Title II of the Social Security Act. Plaintiff raises the 2 following issues for this Court's review:

- 3 1. Whether the RFC compels a finding of disability;
- 4 2. Whether the ALJ properly weighed the medical opinion evidence; and
- 5 3. Whether the ALJ properly discounted Plaintiff's symptom claims.

6 ECF No. 14 at 1.

7 DISCUSSION

8 A. RFC

9 Plaintiff contends that, even if the ALJ properly assessed the RFC, Plaintiff 10 is considered disabled. ECF No. 14 at 3.

11 "[T]he ALJ is responsible for translating and incorporating clinical findings 12 into a succinct RFC." Rounds v. Comm'r Soc. Sec. Admin., 807 F.3d 996, 1006 13 (9th Cir. 2015). "[A]n ALJ's assessment of a claimant adequately captures 14 restrictions related to concentration, persistence, or pace where the assessment is 15 consistent with restrictions identified in the medical testimony." Stubbs-Danielson 16 v. Astrue, 539 F.3d 1169, 1174 (9th Cir. 2008). To the extent the evidence could 17 be interpreted differently, it is the ALJ's responsibility to resolve conflicts and 18 ambiguity in the evidence. Morgan v. Comm'r of the Soc. Sec. Admin., 169 F.3d 19 595, 599-600 (9th Cir. 1999). Where evidence is subject to more than one rational 20 interpretation, the ALJ's conclusion is upheld. Burch v. Barnhart, 400 F.3d 676, 679 (9th Cir. 2005); Hill, 698 F.3d at 1158 (recognizing the court only disturbs the ALJ's findings if they are not supported by substantial evidence).

Here, the ALJ crafted the following RFC:

[Plaintiff can u]nderstand, remember, carry out, and remember [sic] simple instructions. He can respond appropriately to supervision, coworkers, and usual work situations, and deal with changes in a routine work setting. These jobs should be those that can be learned within 30 days, by demonstration, and involve only simple work-related decisions and few workplace changes. He can have superficial and infrequent interaction with supervisors, public and coworkers. There should be no highly interactive or interdependent work groups.

Tr. 1012. Plaintiff argues, based on the RFC's social limitation of "superficial and infrequent interaction with supervisors, public and coworkers" and Kimberly Mullinax's 2014 vocational expert testimony, that Plaintiff is considered disabled. ECF No. 14 at 3. At the 2014 administrative hearing, Ms. Mullinax testified:

Supervisors are typically around the worker on an occasional basis outside of that training period, and the worker would need to be able to work cooperatively with the supervisor and respond appropriately to instructions, so if they had no ability to do that, to respond to supervisors appropriately, then they would not be able to maintain employment.

Tr. 129-30. Plaintiff contends that based on Ms. Mullinax's testimony and the definition of "occasional," which means the condition exists up to 1/3 of the time, POMS DI 25001.001, that Plaintiff, as an individual who can only tolerate "superficial and infrequent" supervisor interaction, is incapable of occasional supervisor contact and thus is unable to maintain employment per Ms. Mullinax's

1 testimony. ECF No. 14 at 3-4. Plaintiff also argues the Court already partly 2 addressed this issue in 2017 by determining that the ALJ's failure to fully credit
3 Dr. Stephen Rubin's marked-supervisor-limitation opinion was not a harmless
4 error because it was consequential to the ultimate disability determination. Id. at 4 5 (citing Tr. 1137).

6       When the 2014 and 2018 vocational-expert testimony—both offered by Ms.
7 Mullinax—are reviewed in their context, Plaintiff's argument that Ms. Mullinax's 8 2014 testimony equates to a finding of disability is not supported by the record.
9 Ms. Mullinax's initial statement was offered generally, as recognized by her use of 10 the phrase "supervisors are typically around the worker on an occasional basis 11 outside of the training period" and pertained to the frequency of the interaction 12 between the worker and supervisors. Tr. 129-30 (emphasis added). In 13 comparison, Ms. Mullinax's 2018 testimony pertained to the worker's ability to 14 interact appropriately with supervisors, e.g., the nature and quality of the worker-15 supervisor interaction, about which she testified that a worker who had no ability 16 to respond appropriately to instructions would be unable to maintain employment.
17 Tr. 130. Thus, in 2014, Ms. Mullinax was not asked the specific hypothetical 18 question presented to her in 2018, which was whether a worker who was limited to 19 superficial and infrequent interaction with supervisors, public, and coworkers, 20 along with the other RFC abilities, including that the worker was capable of 1 responding appropriately to supervision, coworkers, and usual work situations and 2 changes given those quality (superficial) and quantity (infrequent) social-3 interaction limitations, was capable of performing work available in the national 4 economy. Tr. 129-30, 1081-83. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520a(c)(2), 416.920a(c)(2) 5 (examining whether mental impairment interferes with claimant's abilities to 6 function independently, appropriately, effectively, and on a sustained basis); 7 Mawyer v. Berryhill, Case No. 2:16-cv-01140-JAD-GWF, 2019 WL 1246245 (D.

8 Nev. Feb. 28, 2019) (discussing case law distinguishing between the frequency of 9 interactions with supervisors or coworkers and the worker's ability to respond 10 appropriately to supervision or with coworkers); see also O'Connor-Spinner v.
11 Astrue, 627 F.3d 614, 621 (7th Cir. 2010) (finding the ALJ failed to include 12 moderate limitation on responding appropriately to supervisors in the RFC; 13 routine, repetitive tasks with simple instructions was insufficient). In short, the 14 2018 hypothetical posed included a qualification that the worker was able to 15 respond appropriately to infrequent and superficial supervision for tasks that could 16 be learned in thirty days, usual work situations, and changes in a routine work 17 setting so long as there were few workplace changes. Tr. 1012, 1081-83. When 18 asked this specific hypothetical question in 2018, Ms. Mullinax identified three 19 available jobs: industrial cleaner, kitchen helper, and laundry worker II. Tr. 1020, 20 1081-83. Then Ms. Mullinax proceeded to testify in 2018, in response to

1 Plaintiff's counsel's question, that a worker who was unable to appropriately
2 accept direction from supervisors would be incapable of gainful work. Tr. 1083.
3 Thus, Ms. Mullinax's 2014 and 2018 testimony were consistent. If a worker was 4 unable to appropriately interact with the supervisor, that worker was 5 unemployable. Yet, a worker who was limited to infrequent and superficial 6 interaction with a supervisor and could respond appropriately to supervision in that 7 setting was capable of gainful employment. Accordingly, Ms. Mullinax's 8 testimony does not compel a finding of disability based on the crafted RFC.

9 B. Medical Opinion Evidence

10 Plaintiff faults the ALJ's weighing of the medical opinions of Stephen 11 Rubin, Ph.D.; Kenneth Asher, Ph.D.; Dick Moen, MSW; Mary Gentile, Ph.D.; 12 Thomas Genthe, Ph.D.; and Tae-Im Moon, Ph.D. ECF No. 14 at 4-18.

13 There are three types of physicians: "(1) those who treat the claimant 14 (treating physicians); (2) those who examine but do not treat the claimant 15 (examining physicians); and (3) those who neither examine nor treat the claimant 16 [but who review the claimant's file] (nonexamining physicians)." Holohan v.
17 Massanari, 246 F.3d 1195, 1201-02 (9th Cir. 2001) (citations omitted). Generally, 18 a treating physician's opinion carries more weight than an examining physician's 19 opinion, and an examining physician's opinion carries more weight than a 20 nonexamining physician's opinion. Id. at 1202. "In addition, the regulations give

1 more weight to opinions that are explained than to those that are not, and to the 2 opinions of specialists concerning matters relating to their specialty over that of 3 nonspecialists.” Id. (citations omitted).

4 If a treating or examining physician’s opinion is uncontradicted, the ALJ 5 may reject it only by offering “clear and convincing reasons that are supported by 6 substantial evidence.” Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1216 (9th Cir. 2005).
7 “However, the ALJ need not accept the opinion of any physician, including a 8 treating physician, if that opinion is brief, conclusory, and inadequately supported 9 by clinical findings.” Bray v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec. Admin., 554 F.3d 1219, 1228 10 (9th Cir. 2009) (internal quotation marks and brackets omitted). “If a treating or 11 examining doctor’s opinion is contradicted by another doctor’s opinion, an ALJ 12 may only reject it by providing specific and legitimate reasons that are supported 13 by substantial evidence.” Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216. The opinion of a 14 nonexamining physician may serve as substantial evidence if it is supported by 15 other independent evidence in the record. Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 1041 16 (9th Cir. 1995).

17 1. Dr. Rubin

18 Dr. Rubin reviewed Plaintiff’s medical record and testified at the 19 supplemental hearing on May 1, 2012. Tr. 47-57. He opined that Plaintiff had an 20 affective disorder; major depressive disorder, mild; PTSD; and personality disorder absent substance abuse. Tr. 50-51. He opined that, as to the Listings B criteria, Plaintiff had mild restriction of daily living, moderate difficulty in social functioning, and moderate difficulty with concentration, persistence, and pace. Tr. 52. As to Plaintiff's mental RFC, Plaintiff had 1) moderate limitations with understanding and carrying out detailed instructions, maintaining attention, performing within a schedule, working in coordination and in proximity to others, performing at a consistent pace, responding appropriately to change, traveling to unfamiliar places, and setting goals or making plans independently; 2) a moderate to marked limitation with getting along with coworkers and peers; and 3) a marked limitation with interacting with supervisors. Tr. 53-56. Ultimately, Dr. Rubin testified that Plaintiff would have difficulty sustaining employment due to his difficulties getting along with coworkers and supervisors.<sup>4</sup> Tr. 55-56.

The ALJ assigned great weight to Dr. Rubin's assigned functional limitations but rejected Dr. Rubin's opinion that Plaintiff would have difficulty

<sup>4</sup> The May 1, 2012 administrative transcript may contain an error at Tr. 56. The transcript indicates that Plaintiff's counsel asked Dr. Rubin, "And so you seem to agree with Dr. Genthe, Dr. Genthe's opinion in that [Plaintiff's] capable of work, or would have difficulty sustaining employment?" Tr. 56. To which, Dr. Rubin replied, "yes." Tr. 56. The Court suspects that "capable" was supposed to be

1 sustaining employment due to his difficulties getting along with coworkers and 2 supervisors. Tr. 1016. To the extent the ALJ gave weight to Dr. Rubin's assigned 3 functional limitations, the ALJ was to incorporate those limitations into the RFC.
4 See Reddick v. Chater, 157 F.3d 715, 725 (9th Cir. 1998). To the extent Dr.
5 Rubin's opinion was discounted by the ALJ, the ALJ was required to provide 6 specific and legitimate reasons for discounting Dr. Rubin's opinion, as it was 7 inconsistent with Dr. Sharon Underwood's opinion, Tr. 573-86, that Plaintiff had 8 no severe mental impairment. See Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

9 First, the ALJ discounted Dr. Rubin's opinion that Plaintiff would have 10 difficulty sustaining employment because it was inconsistent with the moderate 11 limitations Dr. Rubin found present. Tr. 1016 (citing Tr. 50-56). Relevant factors 12 to evaluating any medical opinion include the amount of relevant evidence that 13 supports the opinion, including the physician's findings, and the quality of the 14 explanation provided in the opinion. Lingenfelter v. Astrue, 504 F.3d 1028, 1042 15 (9th Cir. 2007); Orn v. Astrue, 495 F.3d 625, 631 (9th Cir. 2007); Connett v.

16 _____
17 incapable because Dr. Genthe opined that Plaintiff "is unlikely to function 18 adequately in a work setting until his psychological symptoms have been managed 19 more effectively" and highlighting that Plaintiff had difficulty sustaining prior 20 employment. Tr. 889.

1 Barnhart, 340 F.3d 871, 875 (9th Cir. 2003). Here, the ALJ noted that Dr. Rubin 2 opined a “number of moderate limits in cognitive functioning” and “moderate to 3 marked limits, including a marked restriction in accepting instructions and 4 responding appropriately to criticism from supervisors.” Tr. 1016. Because Dr.
5 Rubin opined a marked restriction as to Plaintiff’s ability to accept instructions and 6 respond appropriately to criticism, which served as the basis for Dr. Rubin’s 7 opinion that Plaintiff was unable to sustain work, it was not reasonable for the ALJ 8 to discount Dr. Rubin’s unable-to-sustain-work opinion on the grounds that Dr.
9 Rubin otherwise opined moderate limitations. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520a(c)(2), 10 416.920a(c)(2), and 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1520a(c)(3), 416.945(c) (differentiating 11 between a claimant’s abilities to function independently, appropriately, effectively, 12 and on a sustained basis); Gatliff v. Comm’r of the Soc. Sec. Admin., 172 F.3d 690, 13 694 (9th Cir. 1999) (recognizing that a claimant must not only be able to do a job 14 but must be able to sustain the job for a significant period of time).

15 Second, the ALJ discounted Dr. Rubin’s opinion that Plaintiff would have 16 difficulty sustaining employment because his opinion was unexplained. Tr. 1016.
17 The Social Security regulations “give more weight to opinions that are explained 18 than to those that are not.” Holohan, 246 F.3d at 1202. “[T]he ALJ need not 19 accept the opinion of any physician . . . if that opinion is brief, conclusory and 20 inadequately supported by clinical findings.” Bray, 554 F.3d at 1228. Here, the 1 ALJ found that Dr. Rubin did not testify about the extent to which Plaintiff would 2 have difficulty dealing with supervisors and coworkers and therefore Dr. Rubin's 3 opinion that Plaintiff would have difficulty sustaining employment was 4 unexplained. Tr. 56. However, the transcript reveals that Dr. Rubin testified about 5 Plaintiff's difficulty holding a job in the past and also discussed that he reviewed 6 Dr. Genthe's opinion that Plaintiff would have difficulty sustaining employment.

7 Tr. 55-56. Moreover, Dr. Rubin was a testifying medical expert. If the ALJ 8 deemed Dr. Rubin's explanation insufficient to support his opinion, Dr. Rubin was 9 available to clarify the basis for his opinion. See Celaya v. Halter, 332 F.3d 1177, 10 1183 (9th Cir. 2003) (recognizing the ALJ may have a duty to develop the basis for 11 a medical opinion through inquiry). On this record, that Dr. Rubin did not explain 12 the degree to which Plaintiff would have difficulty sustaining employment was not 13 a legitimate reason, supported by substantial evidence, to discount Dr. Rubin's 14 unable-to-sustain-work opinion.

15 Third, the ALJ discounted Dr. Rubin's opinion because it was inconsistent 16 with the testimony of Dr. McKnight and the state agency medical consultants. Tr.
17 1016. Relevant factors to evaluating any medical opinion include the amount of 18 relevant evidence that supports the opinion and the consistency of the medical 19 opinion with the record as a whole. Lingenfelter, 504 F.3d at 1042; Orn, 495 F.3d 20 at 631. Here, as to Dr. McKnight, Dr. McKnight recommended psychological

1 testing in order to determine whether Plaintiff had psychological conditions
2 impacting his cognitive and emotional health that were separate from Plaintiff's 3 substance abuse. Tr. 87-92. As to the unidentified state agency medical 4 consultants, the Court presumes the ALJ was referring to Dr. Sharon Underwood 5 and Dr. James Bailey. Tr. 1016-17. Dr. Underwood opined that Plaintiff had no 6 difficulties in social functioning, Tr. 674-86; Dr. Bailey agreed with Dr.
7 Underwood's opinion, Tr. 692. Interestingly, the ALJ discounted the opinions of 8 Dr. McKnight, Dr. Underwood, and Dr. Bailey on the grounds that these opinions 9 were not consistent with the longitudinal evidence. Tr. 1015, 1017. Therefore, it 10 was not a legitimate reason, supported by substantial evidence, to discount Dr.
11 Rubin's unable-to-sustain-employment opinion on the grounds that it was 12 inconsistent with the opinions of Dr. McKnight, Dr. Underwood, and Dr. Bailey—13 opinions the ALJ found inconsistent with the longitudinal record.

14 Fourth, the ALJ discounted Dr. Rubin's opinion that Plaintiff would have 15 difficulty sustaining employment because whether one is able to work is an issue 16 reserved to the Commissioner. Tr. 1016. A statement by a medical source that a 17 claimant is "unable to work" is not a medical opinion and is not due "any special 18 significance." 20 C.F.R. § 416.927(d). Nevertheless, the ALJ is required to 19 consider medical source opinions about any issue, including issues reserved to the 20 Commissioner, by evaluating the opinion in light of the evidence in the record and

1 applying the applicable factors. SSR 96-5p at *2-3. Here, Dr. Rubin offered more 2 than an opinion that Plaintiff was unable to work. Tr. 50-56. Dr. Rubin identified 3 limitations in a variety of skills and opined that Plaintiff was unable to sustain 4 work due to his marked limitation with getting along with coworkers and 5 supervisors. On this record, it was not a legitimate reason, supported by 6 substantial evidence, to discount Dr. Rubin's opinion on the grounds that it was on 7 an issue reserved to the Commissioner. In summary, the ALJ erred by failing to 8 adequately weigh Dr. Rubin's unable-to-sustain-work opinion.

9 As to Dr. Rubin's opinion that Plaintiff had marked limitations in accepting 10 instructions and responding appropriately to criticism from supervisors, the ALJ 11 gave great weight to that opinion. Tr. 1016 (citing Tr. 52-56). Plaintiff argues that 12 because the ALJ gave great weight to this opinion that a finding of disability is 13 compelled based on Ms. Mullinax's testimony. ECF No. 14 at 5 (relying on Tr.
14 129-30). An ALJ must incorporate accepted limitations into the RFC. Reddick v.
15 Chater, 157 F.3d 715, 725 (9th Cir. 1998); Rounds, 807 F.3d at 1006. Here, the 16 ALJ stated that he "accounted for [Dr. Rubin's opined limitations] with restriction 17 to simple instructions with only simple work-related decisions and few workplace 18
19
20

1 changes” and “no more than superficial and infrequent interaction with 2 supervisors, coworkers and the public.” Tr. 1016.

3 First, Plaintiff asks the Court to conclude that any individual who has 4 marked limitations in accepting instructions and responding appropriately to 5 criticism is unable to work. On this record, where the ALJ gave significant weight 6 to conflicting evaluations as discussed below, the Court is not inclined to reach 7 such a conclusion.

8 Second, it is unclear whether these RFC limitations adequately incorporated 9 Dr. Rubin’s opinion that Plaintiff was markedly limited in accepting instructions 10 and responding appropriately to criticism from supervisors. See SSR 85-15 11 (recognizing that the “knowledge that one’s work is being judged and evaluated, 12 even when the supervision is remote or indirect, cannot be tolerated for some 13 mentally impaired persons”); Bagby v. Comm’r of Soc. Sec., 606 Fed. App’x 888, 14 890 (9th Cir. 2015) (unpublished) (holding that RFC limiting claimant to simple, 15 repetitive tasks, no public contact, and occasional interaction with coworkers did 16 not account for limitation in responding appropriately to changes in a routine work 17 setting); Yurt v. Colvin, 758 F.3d 850, 858-59 (7th Cir. 2014) (determining that the 18 RFC that included unskilled task, superficial contact with coworkers and 19 supervisors, and no work around large number of people failed to include 20 plaintiff’s moderate difficulties with concentration, persistence, and pace and

1 temperamental deficiencies); O'Connor-Spinner, 627 F.3d at 621 (finding the ALJ 2 failed to include moderate limitation on responding appropriately to supervisors in 3 the RFC; routine, repetitive tasks with simple instructions was insufficient). Here, 4 the ALJ failed to explain how the RFC accounted for the accepted limitations.
5 Moreover, while Dr. Mary Gentile opined that Plaintiff's moderate limitations in 6 maintaining attention and concentration for extended periods, interacting socially, 7 and adapting could be accounted for by limiting Plaintiff to work away from the 8 public with limited cooperative coworker interaction, and firm but fair supervision, 9 and infrequent work-setting changes, Tr. 603-05, Dr. Rubin opined that Plaintiff 10 was unable to sustain employment due to his limitations, Tr. 55-56. It is the ALJ's 11 role to reconcile conflicting opinions and offer a meaningful explanation so that 12 the Court could review the basis for the ALJ's decision. See Reddick v. Chater, 13 157 F.3d 715, 725 (9th Cir. 1998) (recognizing the ALJ must meaningfully explain 14 the basis for his findings). By giving great weight to Dr. Rubin's opinion that 15 Plaintiff had marked limitations in accepting instructions and responding 16 appropriately to criticism from supervisors and also giving great weight to other 17 moderate-limitation opinions, the Court is unable to meaningfully review the 18 ALJ's decision that the RFC, which limited Plaintiff, in part, to simple tasks, few 19 workplace changes, and superficial and infrequent interaction with supervisors, 20 public, and coworkers, adequately addressed Plaintiff's functional limitations to 1 such extent that he would be capable of responding appropriately to supervision, 2 coworkers, and usual work situations and changes. See Amanda S.G. v. Saul, No.

3 1:18-CV-304JD, 2019 WL 4594605, *4 (N.D. Ind. Sept. 23, 2019) (finding the 4 ALJ failed to explain how the medical opinions that claimant had moderate 5 limitations in responding appropriately to criticism from supervisors was 6 adequately incorporated into the RFC that limited claimant to superficial 7 interaction with supervisor); see also Lohn E. v. Saul, No. 18C7191, 2019 WL 8 2772529, at *3 (N.D. Ill. July 2, 2019) (highlighting that the record included 9 testimony from the medical expert that claimant would benefit from occasional 10 interactions with coworkers, the public, and supervisors given his marked 11 restrictions with his ability to interact appropriately and to adapt to work-setting 12 changes, and therefore the RFC containing similar limitations was supported by 13 substantial evidence). The ALJ's error was not harmless given Dr. Rubin's (and 14 Dr. Asher's) ultimate opinions.

15 Therefore, remand is necessary for the ALJ to reweigh Dr. Rubin's opinion 16 against the other evidence and incorporate any accepted limitations into the RFC 17 with sufficient analysis for the Court to review the ALJ's findings. Moreover, the 18 record lacks a specific finding as to whether sobriety and mental health treatment 19 would improve Plaintiff's social functioning and persistence and, if so, to what 20 extent. Therefore, the Court is unable to rule—as Plaintiff requests—that because

1 Dr. Rubin opined that Plaintiff had a marked ability to interact with supervisors 2 that he is unable to perform any work in the national economy.

3       2. Dr. Asher

4       Dr. Asher testified as the medical examiner during the administrative 5 hearing in February 2018. Tr. 1063-79. Dr. Asher opined that given Plaintiff's 6 psychiatric disorders, Plaintiff's ability to understand, remember, or apply 7 information was mildly impaired; his adaption and self-management skills were 8 mildly impaired; his ability to socially interact was moderately impaired; and his 9 ability to concentrate, persist, and maintain pace (CPP) was moderately impaired.
10 Tr. 1068-70. Dr. Asher also opined that Plaintiff's moderate limitations with social 11 interactions and CPP, when combined, caused a marked limitation with his ability 12 to persist over time and that Plaintiff would fairly soon into his employment be off 13 task 20-25 percent of the time. Tr. 1073-78.

14       The ALJ assigned great weight to Dr. Asher's opinion that Plaintiff could 15 perform simple instructions and tasks but discounted, without identifying a 16 particular given weight, Dr. Asher's opinion that Plaintiff's ability to persist over 17 time was markedly limited. Tr. 1016 (referring to Tr. 1068-78). As to Dr. Asher's 18 discounted opinion, the ALJ was required to provide specific and legitimate 19 reasons for discounting Dr. Asher's opinion, as the opinion was inconsistent with 20

1 Dr. Underwood's opinion, Tr. 573-86, that Plaintiff had no severe mental 2 impairment. See Bayliss, 427 F.3d at 1216.

3 First, the ALJ discounted Dr. Asher's persistence opinion because the basis 4 for the opinion was unclear. Tr. 1016. The Social Security regulations "give more 5 weight to opinions that are explained than to those that are not." Holohan, 246 6 F.3d at 1202. "[T]he ALJ need not accept the opinion of any physician . . . if that 7 opinion is brief, conclusory, and inadequately supported by clinical findings." 8 Bray, 554 at 1228. Here, the ALJ found that Dr. Asher's marked-persistence 9 limitation appeared to be based on Plaintiff's work history and "otherwise [it was] 10 unclear as to the basis for such restriction." Tr. 1016. Dr. Asher was a testifying 11 medical expert. If the ALJ was concerned that Dr. Asher's marked-persistence 12 opinion lacked an evidentiary basis, the ALJ was to question Dr. Asher further to 13 understand the basis for his opinion. See Celaya, 332 F.3d at 1183 (recognizing 14 the ALJ may have a duty to develop the basis for a medical opinion through 15 inquiry). Moreover, a claimant's prior work history is an appropriate consideration 16 for the physician to consider. See 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1527, 416.927 (recognizing 17 that the ALJ is to consider "the extent to which a medical source is familiar with 18 the other information in your case record"). On this record, that Dr. Asher did not 19 explain the degree to which Plaintiff would have difficulty sustaining employment 20 was not a legitimate reason, supported by substantial evidence, to discount Dr.

1 Asher's unable-to-sustain-work opinion. This was error. See Garrison v. Colvin,
2 759 F.3d 995, 1012 (9th Cir. 2014) ("Where an ALJ does not explicitly reject a 3 medical opinion or set forth specific, legitimate reasons for crediting one medical 4 opinion over another, he errs.").

5 Second, the ALJ discounted Dr. Asher's opinion because Dr. Asher was 6 unable to opine as to the extent to which substance abuse impacted Plaintiff's 7 functional abilities. Tr. 1016. An ALJ may properly reject a medical opinion that 8 is rendered without knowledge of a claimant's substance abuse. Cothrell v.
9 Berryhill, 742 Fed. App'x 232, 236 (9th Cir. July 18, 2018) (unpublished opinion).
10 Therefore, the fact that a medical report reflects a claimant's functioning while 11 using drugs or alcohol is a valid consideration to make in evaluating a medical 12 opinion. Chavez v. Colvin, No. 3:14-cv-01178-JE, 2016 WL 8731796, at *8 (D.
13 Or. July 25, 2016) (unpublished opinion). Dr. Asher testified both that he was 14 unsure whether Plaintiff's functioning was worsened by an event that occurred 15 between 2006 and 2008 and that Plaintiff's "got the raw material to function well, 16 and something has been interfering with that. Mental Health and substance abuse 17 are strong probabilities." Tr. 1075. In response, to further questioning by the ALJ, 18 Dr. Asher testified that it was very likely that Plaintiff's loss of a loved one due to 19 death, observation of gang-related trauma, and loss of child custody between 2006 20 and 2008 could have had a "very negative impact" on Plaintiff's functioning as he

1 had a poor way of coping with these problems. Tr. 1075-76. There were no 2 further questions as to Plaintiff's substance abuse and the potential role it played in 3 exacerbating Plaintiff's psychiatric conditions and symptoms. On this record and 4 with Dr. Asher available for further questioning, it was not reasonable for the ALJ 5 to discount Dr. Asher's opinion on the grounds that he failed to account for 6 Plaintiff's substance abuse. See Celaya, 332 F.3d at 1183.

7 Third, the ALJ discounted Dr. Asher's opinion that Plaintiff's persistence 8 was markedly limited as inconsistent with the other opinion evidence. Tr. 1016-9 17. Relevant factors to evaluating any medical opinion include the amount of 10 relevant evidence that supports the opinion and the consistency of the medical 11 opinion with the record. Lingenfelter, 504 F.3d at 1042; Orn, 495 F.3d at 631. An 12 ALJ may choose to give more weight to an opinion that is more consistent with the 13 evidence in the record. 20 C.F.R. §§ 404.1527, 416.927(c)(4). Here, the ALJ 14 found that Dr. Asher's persistence opinion was inconsistent with the 1) 2009 15 opinion of Dick Moen, MSW, who opined moderate cognitive and social 16 functioning limitations, Tr. 1016 (citing Tr. 563-66); 2) 2009 opinion of Roland 17 Dougherty, Ph.D., who opined that Plaintiff's social skills appeared to be "fairly 18 good," his social judgment "may be somewhat deficient," and Plaintiff appeared to 19 be "somewhat immature," Tr. 1017 (citing Tr. 579-86); and 3) the 2009 opinion of 20 Mary Gentile, Ph.D., who opined that, due to Plaintiff's moderate limitations with

1 social functioning and CPP, Plaintiff would “work best away from the public” with 2 limited cooperative coworker interaction and that supervision should be “firm, but 3 fair,” and that Plaintiff’s work setting should have infrequent changes given his 4 reactivity, Tr. 1017 (citing Tr. 589-605). It was the ALJ’s role to weigh the 5 conflicting medical opinions. While the ALJ’s weighing of the opinions of Mr.
6 Moen, Dr. Dougherty, and Dr. Gentile may be reasonable, the ALJ’s weighing of 7 Dr. Asher’s persistence opinion, which was issued nine years after these opinions, 8 was erroneously impacted due to the errors discussed supra. Therefore, on 9 remand, the ALJ is to reweigh the medical opinions.

10 A meaningful analysis will permit the Court to assess the ALJ’s finding that 11 by limiting Plaintiff to the tasks identified in the RFC, along with the social 12 limitations, that Plaintiff is able to respond appropriately to supervision, 13 coworkers, and usual work-place situations and changes.

14 3. Other Challenges

15 Plaintiff also challenges the ALJ’s failure to properly weigh or incorporate 16 into the RFC the opinions of 1) Mr. Moen, to which the ALJ assigned great weight, 17 Tr. 1016, 563-68; 2) Dr. Gentile, to which the ALJ assigned great weight, Tr. 1017, 18 589-605; 3) Dr. Genthe, who opined, amongst other limitations, that Plaintiff had 19 moderate limitations with responding appropriately to usual work situations and to 20 changes in a routine work setting and interacting appropriately with the public and

1 co-workers, to which the ALJ assigned great weight, and extreme limitations in 2 interacting with supervisors, to which the ALJ assigned little weight, Tr. 1018, 3 891-93; and 4) Dr. Moon, who opined that Plaintiff's severe anxiety and 4 depression interfered with his ability to work, to which the ALJ assigned little 5 weight, Tr. 926-29, 1018.

6 Because the ALJ erred by misweighing Dr. Rubin's and Dr. Asher's 7 opinions, the Court need not address the merits of Plaintiff's challenges to these 8 other medical opinions.

9 C. Plaintiff's Symptom Reports

10 Plaintiff contends the ALJ failed to rely on clear and convincing reasons in 11 discrediting his statements about the intensity, persistence, and other limiting 12 effects of his symptoms. ECF No. 14 at 18-20. Because the ALJ erred by 13 misweighing Dr. Rubin's and Dr. Asher's opinions, the Court declines to address 14 this challenge. On remand, the ALJ is to reconsider Plaintiff's statements about 15 the effects of his symptoms. If the ALJ discounts Plaintiff's reported symptoms 16 because of lack of treatment, the ALJ must consider whether Plaintiff's conditions 17 were expected to benefit from treatment and/or whether any reasons offered 18 constitute good cause for failure to follow or seek treatment. See Orn, 495 F.3d at 19 638; Holohan, 246 F.3d at 1205. The ALJ may consider developing the record as 20 to whether Plaintiff's persistence and social difficulties are attributable to a

1 psychiatric condition—or drug or alcohol usage or other non-disability-related 2 reason. Second, if the ALJ discounts Plaintiff’s reported symptoms because 3 Plaintiff offered conflicting reports as to his ability to get along with others, the 4 ALJ must consider whether Plaintiff’s conflicting reports were due to Plaintiff’s 5 psychiatric conditions or drug and alcohol abuse. Third, if the ALJ determines that 6 a drug abuse and alcoholism (DAA) analysis is needed, the ALJ is to engage in the 7 DAA analysis.

8 REMEDY

9 Plaintiff urges this Court to remand for an immediate award of benefits.
10 ECF No. 14 at 1.

11 “The decision whether to remand a case for additional evidence, or simply to 12 award benefits is within the discretion of the court.” Sprague v. Bowen, 812 F.2d 13 1226, 1232 (9th Cir. 1987). When the Court reverses an ALJ’s decision for error, 14 the Court “ordinarily must remand to the agency for further proceedings.” Leon v.
15 Berryhill, 880 F.3d 1041, 1045 (9th Cir. 2017); Benecke v. Barnhart, 379 F.3d 587, 16 595 (9th Cir. 2004) (“[T]he proper course, except in rare circumstances, is to 17 remand to the agency for additional investigation or explanation.”). However, in a 18 number of Social Security cases, the Ninth Circuit has “stated or implied that it 19 would be an abuse of discretion for a district court not to remand for an award of 20 benefits” when three conditions are met. Garrison, 759 F.3d at 1020. Under the

1 credit-as-true rule, where 1) the record has been fully developed and further 2 administrative proceedings would serve no useful purpose; 2) the ALJ has failed to 3 provide legally sufficient reasons for rejecting evidence, whether claimant 4 testimony or medical opinion; and 3) if the improperly discredited evidence were 5 credited as true, the ALJ would be required to find the claimant disabled on 6 remand, the court will remand for an award of benefits. Revels v. Berryhill, 874
7 F.3d 648, 668 (9th Cir. 2017). Even where the three prongs have been satisfied, 8 the court will not remand for immediate payment of benefits if “the record as a 9 whole creates serious doubt that a claimant is, in fact, disabled.” Garrison, 759 10 F.3d at 1021.

11 While the Court is mindful that this matter has been considered by an 12 administrative law judge on three occasions, the Court determines that further 13 proceedings are necessary because the record casts serious doubt that Plaintiff is in 14 fact disabled, particularly if he received mental health treatment or abstained from 15 drugs and alcohol. See 42 U.S.C. § 423(d)(2)(C) (“An individual shall not be 16 considered to be disabled . . . if alcoholism or drug addiction would . . . be a 17 contributing factor material to the Commissioner’s determination that the 18 individual is disabled.”). For instance, although Mr. Moen opined that Plaintiff’s 19 limitations were not dependent on Plaintiff’s drug and alcohol use, Tr. 563-68, Dr.
20 Gentile noted that Plaintiff continued to abuse substances, “which appears to be

1 [Plaintiff's] largest issue," Tr. 601; and Dr. McKnight testified that Plaintiff's 2 substance abuse largely impacted his functional ability, Tr. 82-93. See Tr. 51, 54 3 (Dr. Rubin: noting that Plaintiff may have been medicating himself for years with 4 drugs or alcohol because of depression and anxiety); Tr. 888-89 (Dr. Genthe: 5 noting that Plaintiff's substance abuse may be a contributing factor to his 6 personality conditions); Tr. 1068, 1071, 1075 (Dr. Asher: same as Dr. Genthe).
7 Second, it is also unclear to what extent, if any, Plaintiff's limitations would be 8 eliminated or lessened by treatment and whether and when that treatment was 9 available to Plaintiff. Compare Tr. 585 (Dr. Dougherty: noting that Plaintiff's 10 prognosis was "fair and dependent upon his use of counseling and medication 11 resources"); Tr. 889 (Dr. Genthe: opining that treatment of six-to-nine months may 12 permit Plaintiff to regain necessary emotional functioning to work fulltime); Tr. 51 13 (Dr. Rubin: agreeing with Dr. Genthe that Plaintiff has the potential for 14 improvement if he has good treatment); with Tr. 566 (Mr. Moen: opining that it 15 may take two to three years to find the proper medication to treat Plaintiff's mental 16 health conditions). Moreover, as discussed supra, if the ALJ abides by the current 17 RFC, the ALJ must meaningfully explain the basis for the ALJ's finding that by 18 limiting Plaintiff to the tasks identified in the RFC, along with the social 19 limitations, that Plaintiff is able to respond appropriately to supervision, 20

1 coworkers, and usual work-place situations and changes. Further proceedings are 2 necessary for the ALJ to resolve these conflicts in the evidence.

3 On remand, the ALJ is to order a consultative examination and obtain the 4 testimony of a medical expert. The ALJ is to then conduct a new sequential 5 analysis, including reconsidering Plaintiff's symptom testimony.

6 CONCLUSION

7 Having reviewed the record and the ALJ's findings, the Court concludes the 8 ALJ's decision is neither supported by substantial evidence nor free of harmful 9 legal error. Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

10 1. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment, ECF No. 14, is GRANTED.
